1. Oil borings were started in May 1953 in the area of Marcaltő (P48/Y21)- Szany-Morichida on both sides of the Rába River. (see annex).
2. The borings were particularly successful in the area north of Omalomsok; one derrick was seen there in October 1953. Borings were then extended to the area north of the Rába River.
3. Borings carried out in the area of Lővő and Sopronkövesd were unsuccessful. The borings are reported to have been sabotaged by Hungarian workers; for this reason, all new boring work is under Soviet control.
